

AFA Pistons

Exceeding Performance Demands

Harsher CO2 regulations and heightened diesel fuel economy requirements are causing dramatic changes in the approach major engine designers and builders are taking to their products. Smaller displacements and higher compressions are becoming the industry standard. The results are sharply raised mechanical and thermal cylinder loads.

AFA pistons have increased strength and durability to withstand these higher cylinder pressures and optimized cooling for superior heat resistance.